

Evaluation Guide

PROJECT NUMBER TWELVE

Carrying On

SPEAKER_____

DATE_____

SUBJECT_____

EVALUATOR_____

Note to the Evaluator: The speaker whom you are to evaluate has made a good many speeches. You are to judge them on progress, rather than on delivery of this one speech.

How many speeches have you heard them give, approximately? Compare this performance with earlier ones, and try to trace the improvement. Point out the good things which they have already accomplished, and advise them on work which they still need to do.

Encourage them to carry on with practice, and tell them how to make further improvement.

It will be a good plan for the speaker and the evaluator to confer beforehand, so as to agree on certain points which should be observed. If the speaker wishes to ask questions of their critic, they should be permitted to do so, not in the way of arguing, but that they may gain additional help for future use.

Primarily, tell the speaker whether their speech accomplished a clear purpose, and what, if anything, hindered the accomplishment.

What type of speech do they do best?

To what kind of speech should they give special attention?

In your opinion, to what extent have they profited by pursuing the projects presented in BASIC TRAINING?
