PROJECT NUMBER SEVEN

Reading the Speech

SPEAKER _____

DATE _____

SUBJECT _____

EVALUATOR _____

Note to Evaluator: This project is planned to give the speaker practice in reading from a script. Since it is written, we have a right to expect that it is well prepared. If it shows carelessness in composition, call attention to this. Otherwise, praise their good work. Delivery is the important thing this time. Watch their handling of the script, their ease in meeting the audience, and their freedom from the appearance of reading.

Perhaps you do not like this type of delivery. Do not let your prejudice keep you from giving a fair evaluation. The reading was either good or not good, and there must be reasons you can give. Their material was interesting and well prepared, or it was not. Which? Why?

Devote your spoken criticism to a two-minute discussion of the manner of reading. Write additional comments and suggestions on this sheet for the speaker's permanent record.

In your evaluation, consider these points:

1. Did they handle their papers easily, so as to cause no distraction?

2. Did they maintain good eye contact—good relations with the audience?

3. Did they use some gestures, both with hands and voice?

4. In brief, can you say that they read well, or poorly?
Add the “why” comment, so far as possible, in each comment.
